Dear Trove user science.war.trains.etc,

Trove Management has received a report that actions carried out on the Trove website attributed to the username science.war.trains.etc have contravened the Trove Terms of use. On investigation, Trove staff have determined that these actions are in contravention of the Terms.

The actions in question involve adding a space or superfluous character to an article, saving, and then removing the space/character again. For example, the corrections attributed to the user science.war.trains.etc on this article: <https://trove.nla.gov.au/newspaper/article/10149158>

The Terms of use for the Trove service require that users “provide relevant notes, comments and corrections” as well as making “everyone in the community feel comfortable and their contributions valued”. The Terms of use are available in full here: <http://trove.nla.gov.au/general/termsfuse>

This is your first warning, if Trove receives another report of actions attributed to the username science.war.trains.etc that contravene the Trove Terms of Use, you will be issued a second warning. At the third warning you will receive advice that the user account science.war.trains.etc is being revoked, and all content that you contributed that contravenes the Trove Terms of Use will be removed from Trove; and the associated email address de-activated in Trove.

To avoid a second warning you should review and moderate past actions attributed to the username science.war.trains.etc to ensure they comply with the Trove Terms of use.

This incident is covered by Trove’s Terms of Use, which give us the right to withdraw or suspend the use of Trove by any person who uses Trove in breach of these terms and conditions.

To contact Trove Management about this matter fill out the Contact form or use the Contact us button at the top of all web pages on the Trove website. Please note this TroveSupport account is not monitored.

Thank you for your compliance and cooperation with this matter.

Trove Management
