A sketch at the Portuguese settlement at Delli [i.e. Dili], on the NE end of Timor / Owen Stanley, ca. 1838.

June 2006

Preface

The National Library of Australia holds a significant collection of material about East Timor, dating from the periods of Portuguese colonisation, Indonesian occupation and post-independence. This bibliography is the first attempt to list all the National Library's holdings on East Timor, including monographs, newspapers and non-book material (including maps, pictures, and ephemera), up to and including June 2006. The material was extracted from the catalogue using keyword searches such as "Timor" in title, subject and place of publication. All records which referred only to West Timor have been removed from the list, but some which refer to the whole island have been retained as they may still be of some relevance to researchers.

The material is arranged alphabetically by author, or by title for the material where no author is given or main entry is by title. Hopefully future editions of this bibliography will be subdivided by subject to make research easier. It has not been possible to check every item listed, so there may well be some records included which despite their title have little relevance to East Timorese research. The authors request that readers of the bibliography bring them to their attention so that they can be removed from future editions of this bibliography.

Works on East Timor are not housed separately, nor within Asian Collections, but are integrated within the National Library's overseas collections by format – i.e. East Timorese newspapers are held with the other overseas newspapers. As this bibliography does not list the location of each item, the Library's catalogue must be checked to find it. Most items, with the exception of serials and newspapers, may be requested through interlibrary loan.

The East Timor collection is a growing one, and it is intended to update this bibliography regularly. The authors welcome feedback, including notification of errors and suggestions for improvements to the bibliography or additions to the collection.
