GENTLEMEN,—Having announced my intention of offering myself as a candidate for your suffrages at the ensuing election of Members for the Legislative Assembly, it is essentially necessary that I should put you in possession of the knowledge of the principles by which I shall be guided should it be your pleasure to place your confidence in me.

It is perhaps difficult to find any decided test like that which unfortunately exist in the Mother Country, by which political opinions may be tried. Allow me, however, to declare that I am a sincere friend of civil and religious liberty.

This being my adopted land, and having no intention of ever quitting it, and firmly trusting, that, from the occurrences of the past years, and the manner in which I have defended the interests of all with whom I have come in contact, I boldly claim the title of a true Australian colonist, being a freeholder of its soil.

Fully aware of the responsibility attached to the honorable post to which I now aspire, and sensible of the duties, which will be arduous and complicated, and can only be performed faithfully and beneficially by one, who, through evil and good reports, and whatever may be the inducement to swerve from his public duty, yet has the courage to pursue that course, which, in his honest opinion, is most likely to promote the local advantage of his constituents and the general interests of the colony. This shall be the constant rule by which my conduct will be guided, sparing neither pains nor labour to discharge my duty towards you; and I will, if elected, enter the Legislative Council fettered by no tie but that of my patriotic feelings to this my adopted country.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient Servant,
WILLIAM HUSTLER.

To the Independent Electors of the City of Sydney.

GENTLEMEN,—In compliance with the urgent solicitations of many of my friends, I hasten to announce to you my intention of coming forward, at the necessary juncture, as a Candidate for the honour of representing your interests in the new Legislative Council; and when I shall have briefly unfolded to you my views and motives for so doing, I trust you will not hesitate to secure my election by your votes.

My views are taken from the present formidable aspect of public affairs. My motive is, to the utmost stretch of my ability, to do you essential service.

Gentlemen, your city, in common with the rest of the colony, has reached a critical position, and must rapidly retrograde if inefficiently represented in the forthcoming council. It will be wise therefore of you to confide the duty of representing your interests to men of known judgment and sound principles; to men, not of words, but of deeds; not to mere "men of straw," but men of substance; in short, to men who know your true interests, and who will honestly maintain them. Of this class of men I profess myself to be, and on my ability to convince you of my possession of those indispensable qualifications it is, that I ground my claims to your confidence and support, as well as my own hope of promoting your political welfare: for although the new Act of Parliament certainly goes far from conferring that extent of popular representation which the present critical circumstances of the colony so imperatively demand; yet, in efficient hands, with independent, energetic elective members, it may, to my thinking, be rendered an instrument of much general good.

Gentlemen, I have now dwelt among you nearly thirty years, during which, I believe you will all acknowledge that I have spared neither exertions nor capital to advance the public interest at the same time with my own, in promoting the useful arts, trade, and manufactures of your city. I have no private interests to gratify that are not identified with yours. I have no public interests to serve but yours. I am neither a place holder nor a place hunter. I want not any court favours. I profess to be no wordy theorist, but a practical utilitarian. I profess no more than what I mean, but can be staunch to what I do profess.

If you feel, Gentlemen, that these are legitimate causes why I may reasonably claim your confidence, it only remains for me to ask of you to put me to the proof, by granting me your triumphant support at the approaching election; and in the event of your returning me as your representative in the first Legislative Assembly of the colony, believe me, it shall be my most anxious endeavour to support, as far as my experience and ability can further the great ends I have in view, each measure that may be brought forward, no matter by what individual or party, having for its object the public good of the working classes, and the encouragement of colonial manufactures in particular. Be assured that I shall be always found at my post, and on the alert to give my most unflinching and determined opposition to any attempts that may be made, from sinister motives, or otherwise, to stifle or counteract such measures; convinced as I am, that on them will depend the vitality of the colony.

I shall do myself the honour of canvassing you all personally, and in the mean time remain, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient servant,

ROBERT COOPER, Senior.

Ormond House, December 26.

To the Independent Electors of the City of Sydney.

GENTLEMEN.—Having now ascertained the result of our canvas, and that we have succeeded beyond all doubt, through the agency of our very active and efficient Committee, and other friends, in procuring the pledges of a large majority of the City constituency, and the promises of a great many more (all of which we can fully rely on), we do not deem it necessary, acting under the advice of our Committee, to prosecute our canvas any further for the present: more especially, as the election for the City cannot take place, at the soonest, until June next.

Under these circumstances, we feel it incumbent on us to return you generally, and individually, our very sincere and grateful acknowledgments, for the warm and spontaneous support which we have met with, and to assure you that, before the day of election, we shall make it a point, as far as possible, to pay our respects in person to those of our supporters to whom we have not yet had an opportunity of returning our thanks for their votes and interest in our behalf.

We have the honor to be, Gentlemen,

Your faithful, obliged, and obedient servants,

W. C. WENTWORTH,
W. BLAND.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

To the Independent Electors of the City of Sydney.

GENTLEMEN,—Upwards of twenty years since, I obtained for this colony the repeal of certain destructive local duties on its principal exports at that time; the removal of some restrictions as to the use of Crown lands, which were incompatible with the prosperity of our grazing interests. I was also instrumental in procuring the adoption of other measures for the relief of our agriculture, at that time almost destroyed. Since that period, I have unremittingly laboured with other friends of the colony, in the establishment of means for affording a liberal education to our youth, on a scale commensurate to its growing requirements. I have afforded much of my time in various departments, in the management of our two principal national institutions for the relief of our decayed citizens, and for seventeen or eighteen years, more particularly for the last six or seven years, I have been unremitting in my exertions, in connexion with other friends of civil and religious liberty, and of good government, to obtain and to preserve to us, not only those free institutions of which we are already possessed, but that also which we are now about to enjoy.

So long a period of almost unremitting exertion in the public affairs of this colony, has at least afforded me the means of obtaining much information and practical experience. This has induced me to offer myself as a candidate at the ensuing election; and should I obtain the distinguished honour of being elected to represent this important City in the local legislature about, for the first time, to be established, I will at least pledge myself to endeavour to promote the best interests of the constituency which I shall have the honour to represent, and of the colonists generally, with unabated exertion.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, your most obedient Servant,
W. BLAND.

To the Independent Electors of the City of Sydney.

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to announce to you that it is my intention to offer myself as a candidate for the honour of representing your City in the first Session of the the new Legislative Council. After having laboured among you for the last eighteen years, in concert with other friends of freedom, to obtain those constitutional privileges, which are the rightful inheritance of Britons and their descendants, in whatever quarter of the empire they may reside, I trust,—now that the parent Legislature has at length conceded to us a portion of our birthright, that I may be permitted to found my claim to your support, on the part I have taken in procuring this important concession,—tardy—as it has been, and imperfect and unsatisfactory—as it still is.

My public principles have been so often before the public, in the course of the long and arduous struggle, which has led to this approaching change in our form of government, that I do not consider it necessary to trouble you with a recapitulation of them now: feeling confident, that my veneration for civil and religious liberty, and for all the free and expansive elements of our happy constitution will not be doubted by any one who is acquainted with my public career.

Should it be your pleasure to elect me to the distinguished honour of being one of your first representatives, I pledge myself to deal with all measures, that may be propounded to the Council, according only to my deliberate views of their probable tendency, come from what quarter they may: giving to whatever I may deem beneficial to the general weal, my cordial support; and to whatever I may judge detrimental, my strenuous opposition.

A son of the soil myself, it must be almost needless to add, that my whole interests, feelings, and prejudices, are identified with the prosperity of my country—a prosperity which, I know, can only be insured by free institutions and equal laws. To revive and re-establish that prosperity on lasting foundations, is evidently the first want of the colony, and will be the first duty of its new Legislature.

After having devoted the best energies of my life to promote the interests of my country, I trust it will not be deemed presumptuous in me to anticipate, that few will be found in its Councils more competent to assist in extricating it from its difficulties; still fewer—with more experience, purer intentions, or greater zeal. I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, Your most obedient humble Servant,
Vaucluse, December 19.
W. C. WENTWORTH.
