

EYES TO THE FUTURE

Sketches of Australia and her Neighbours in the 1870s

JENNIFER M.T. CARTER

What was life like in the Australian colonies in the 1870s? Jennifer M.T. Carter shows us much that is strange and much that is strangely familiar in Eyes to the Future: Sketches of Australia and Her Neighbours in the 1870s.

Discover the everyday lives of the colonists of the 1870s: some achieved fame and notoriety; others watched their hopes and dreams crumble; many simply got on with the business of living. But 100 years after James Cook and his crew first visited in the Endeavour, Australia was a country emerging into nationhood.

Drawing on primary research material held in the National Library's collections, this new publication explores our social customs, social conditions, encounters with Australia's neighbours, eminent people, strange episodes, the operation of justice, royalty, romance, madness, dissent and much more during this fascinating decade.
