Hi [staff name redacted],

We have received another report about the activities of r.j.trenwith. We sent a warning to this user in April and the activity involving the deletion and subsequent one word at a time per line replacement of text is continuing.

Attached is the investigation report (as well as for two other users – which we are recommending no action).

Can you approve the release of a final warning to r.j.trenwith?

Thanks

Hi [staff name redacted]

We have received 2 requests to review the text correction activity of the following accounts:

- r.j.trenwith
- yelnod
- sezblack1977

Attached is a report of my investigations into their activity.

In summary my recommendations are as follows:

- r.j.trenwith – roll back text corrections where gaming activity can be identified (including any legitimate corrections on the article). Advise user this is their final warning if this behaviour continues their account will be deactivated.
- yelnod – no action – all activity appears to be legitimate corrections, just high volume
- sezblack1977 - no action – all activity appears to be legitimate corrections, just high volume

For approval to proceed with recommendations.

Regards
